

Article on animal telepathic communication

Tina and Charlie

Many years ago I shared my home with two very beautiful bull terrier Labrador crosses, Tina and Charlie. After spending time in the garden I would walk inside to find the two of them fast asleep in the lounge. I would decide to play a game with them so without waking them I would turn my back on them and THINK; I wonder if we should go and play with the balls now; when I turned around they would both be sitting up with the balls in their mouths waiting. I would think, 'wow' what clever dogs. What I hadn't realized is that I had just sent them a picture of themselves with the balls in their mouths and they were just responding.

Animals don't communicate the way we do, they communicate with each other by sending thoughts, feelings and pictures. If you can learn how to do this and practice you too can communicate in this way. For example, if you walk out into your garden and see your dog digging a big hole in your flowerbed, what do you do? You shout DON'T DIG, without knowing it you have just sent a picture to your dog of himself digging a hole, he thinks yaaaaaay I'm allowed to dig and carry's on. It would be much better to say LETS FETCH THE BALL so we can play, he will then get a picture of himself fetching the ball.

How many of you have a problem and need to lock your dogs out when your visitors arrive to prevent your dogs jumping up with muddy paws. The two problems you have here are:

- 1) The dogs believe they have done something wrong and are being punished.
- 2) You being scared of the dogs jumping has put the picture in their minds and they think it's what is expected of them.

Your dogs feel they are part of the family and should be included and allowed to welcome visitors. Instead of saying Don't Jump, try saying KEEP ALL FOUR PAWS ON THE FLOOR.

All animals communicate telepathically.

Telepathy is a mind-to-mind contact.

Have you ever had the experience of knowing that the phone was going to ring before it rings and who was on the other end?

That is telepathy, have you ever had a premonition that something good or bad was about to happen, telepathy. What about what someone was going to say seconds before they said it. All this is a form of telepathy.

Every one of us is born with this ability, but as we get older our ability's start shutting down because of fear of the unknown or embarrassment people saying don't be ridiculous.

People often talk about a left-brain and a right brain, the left-brain is our analytical practical side, which helps us analyse and make sense of things. Our right brain is our intuitive and psychic side. This is where our intuition and gut feeling comes from.

Over the years we are made to analyse everything, if it doesn't make sense it isn't true. If we can't see it it doesn't exist. People start saying, don't be ridiculous, it's not true, it must be your imagination. After a while our right brain starts to shut down blocking our intuitive and psychic abilities. Like a muscle we never use. All our GUT feelings we push aside and say, it can't be, it must be my imagination. This is how our psychic ability's shut down and we start to lose our abilities. Some of us many years later eventually become aware of our ability's and decide to reawaken our right brain, like a muscle that has to start working again. It takes many exercises and lots of time to reawaken our intuitive abilities.

Have you ever heard the saying? Think before you speak?

Well, where animals are concerned you need to think before you think.

Riff Raff

It was a hot sunny day and I had spent the best part of the day with my horses. I was tired hot and ready to take a break.

As I stepped in to my TV room I sat down with a sigh. I looked up and in front of me were all my canine companions. Snoopy and Daisy jack Russell terriers, Maggie a beautiful bull terrier Labrador cross and Stacey and Riff Raff my very mischievous Siberian huskies. They were all fast asleep on the couches. I took one look at this lot and said (telepathically) so guys I see you're having a hard day in the office today. With that Riff Raff looked up straight into my eyes and I heard the words in my head... "Don't be ridiculous"...after which he turned over and went back to sleep.
